

North American Equipment Dealers Association

"Committed to building the best business environment for North American equipment dealers"

BIOGRAPHY

Paul E. Kindinger is president and chief executive officer of the North American Equipment Dealers Association (NAEDA) and NAEDA Services, Inc.

Prior to joining NAEDA in 2001, Kindinger previously served as president/CEO of the Agricultural Retailers Association; was a former Washington, D.C. lobbyist and governmental relations advisor for Kahn, Soares & Conway. He's also a former director of agriculture for the state of Michigan (1983-89) and he served as director of public affairs and a special advisor (1989-91) to former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter in the administration of President George H.W. Bush.

Kindinger also served on the IRON Solutions, LLC board until its sale in June 2008. He has served on other numerous boards as well.

Kindinger earned a doctorate in agricultural economics from Cornell University. He also earned bachelor's and master's degrees from Michigan State University.

Kindinger is a native of Michigan. He and his wife Carol currently reside near St. Louis, Missouri.

The North American Equipment Dealers Association is based in Fenton, Mo. It provides educational, financial, legal assistance, and legislative services to approximately 5,000 dealers in the United States and Canada.

For more information or photo of Paul Kindinger, call Mike Kraemer, North American Equipment Dealers Association, at 636/349-6203.

October 2008

Paul E. Kindinger
President/CEO

"Helping Dealers Succeed"